The University of Georgia's Grady College of Journalism and Mass Communication will bring together generations of graduates, media professionals, their families and friends for a festive formal reception and dinner program on Thursday, Nov. 20, at 6 p.m. at The Classic Center in downtown Athens.

Grady's Centennial Gala will induct charter members of the Grady Fellowship and announce The Centennial Campaign for Grady: 1915-2015, Democracy's Next Generation, celebrating the college's history and looking toward the next 100 years.

Grady College alumnae Deborah Norville (ABJ '79), host of CBS' Inside Edition, and Deborah Roberts (ABJ '82), ABC News correspondent, will serve as co-hosts for the evening.

"We will celebrate the lives of friendship and service that add immeasurably to the reputation of this college, sustain its mission and make the future possible for students here," said Grady College Dean E. Culpepper Clark. "Celebrating the bonds that unite us, the Centennial Gala provides a fitting occasion to commence a historic campaign that will be truly transformational for this college."

The Grady Fellowship recognizes and honors individuals whose lives and careers have contributed immeasurably to the national reputation Grady College enjoys.

The gala event will be supported by sponsorships from corporate friends of the college and ticket sales. Centennial Gala tickets are available for purchase for $125 per person, with tables of 10 available for $1,200. For information about the Centennial Gala and to purchase tickets, visit http://grady100.uga.edu/ or call Karen Andrews at 706-542-6840.